Blood Bank Will Help Putnam People

Wilbur L. Maury, administrator of the Putnam county hospital, praised the Putnam county Red Cross Chapter's "walking Blood Program" in an announcement yesterday. Designed to supply whole blood for patients hospitalized there, Mr. Maury said, "This program will meet an acute need and we expect it to eliminate many of the worries we have had in supplying blood."

The hospital administrator stressed the fact that the blood is needed locally and will be used entirely for patients in the Putnam County hospital. "There is no substitute for blood," he said. "It cannot be made synthetically but must come from healthy men and women who are willing to donate it. Transfusions are becoming more and more necessary as additional research unearths the healing power of blood."

Blood, as whole blood, plasma, and the array of blood products, was one factor in a brilliant wartime medical record—the survival of 97.3 per cent of all wounded American servicemen. But V-J Day and peace brought a casualty that should have been avoided. It was the ending, on September 15, 1945, of the Red Cross wartime blood donor program.

CHECK CHARGE FILED AGAINST RUSSELL PITTS

MAN WHO ATTEMPTED SUICIDE NOW FACING MORE TROUBLE

Russell H. Pitts, who attempted to commit suicide in the Putnam county jail early Tuesday, faced additional trouble today with the filing of an affidavit in circuit court charging him with issuing a fraudulent check for $10. The affidavit against Pitts was signed by Robert W. Orr, proprietor of a local tavern who cashed the check on Monday.

Pitts, arrested by city police Monday evening, cut his left wrist with a razor blade early Tuesday morning. Found bleeding by deputy sheriff Victor Cue, the man was taken to the Putnam county hospital for treatment. It was found he had severed a nerve, a small artery and a tendon in his suicide attempt.

City police stopped Pitts near the telephone office on south Indiana street Monday and started to question him about the check he had given Orr, written on the Central National Bank. Police said Pitts denied knowing Orr or writing the check and then made an effort to flee. He was caught by the officers at Link's corner and taken to jail.

Pitts said that Pitts also cashed a $10 check written on a Chicago bank late Monday afternoon at Hanna's book store.

Pitts is a former resident but has been living recently near Monticello. He had been in Greencastle about a week prior to his arrest.

Gunmen Wound Victor Reuther

DETROIT, May 25.—(UP)—Walter P. Reuther, president of the CIO United Auto Workers, said today the shooting of his brother, Victor, was part of a "campaign of terrorism" carried out by gunmen in the pay of "people opposed to decent, clean, American, democratic trade unionism."

He said they could be Communists, fascists or "die-hard elements among employers."

Victor Reuther, 37, educational director of the UAW, was shot down last night as he sat reading a newspaper in the living room of his home.

The lone gunman sneaked up on the porch in the dark, poked a 12-gauge shotgun through the window and let go with both barrels at almost point blank range.

Reuther was seated beside his wife, Sophie, but she was uninjured by the twin blasts. Their three children were asleep upstairs.

The pellets tore into Reuther's face and shoulder, shattering several bones, including his collar bone. Police said he may lose the sight of his right eye. They said two pellets lodged in his head and several others hit him in the shoulder.

After the shooting, the would-be assassin tossed the shotgun in a clump of bushes near the porch of the two-story Reuther home and fled in an automobile.

More than 150 police and detectives were assigned to track down the would-be killer.

Reuther was taken to Redford hospital and later was transferred to the Henry Ford hospital where his condition was "serious."

"I know of no reason why I should be shot," he told police when he regained consciousness.

"There have been no threats and I had no known grudges."

Walter Reuther, who was shot in a similar assassination attempt 13 months ago, rushed to the hospital along with other union officials when he was notified of the shooting.

Destroy all oily dust cloths and clean accumulations of grease from cooking stoves as a fire-prevention precaution.

FISHIN' FUN

Local Hopefuls will be glad to know that a new fishing hole has been discovered less than a block from the public square. Yes Sir, after running many miles seeking a suitable place to fish, we were happily surprised to find this cool dark pool, almost at our doorstep. When we discovered this place, several of the locals were engaged in a strange method of angling. Sam Raden was hopping about on one foot, Gene Crawley was madly welding a broom, Wendell Pell was doing a toe dance, while Dale Brown was calmly leaning against the wall reading a copy of "The Rains Came". Inquiry revealed that the basement of the BANNER office was flooded by the spring precipitation of the past few days.

Freistadt Will Continue Studies

CHAPLAIN HILL, N. C., May 25.—(UP)—Avowed Communist Hans Freistadt said today he would continue his studies at the University of North Carolina even if his appointment as a graduate instructor is not renewed.

The 23-year-old Austrian-born student denounced university officials' decision not to renew his instructorship as "not in line with academic freedom."

University trustees met yesterday and announced that they would not rehire Freistadt when his graduate assistant's appointment expires June 1.

Freistadt, who served in the United States army during World War II, said he has five months left under the GI bill of rights and will stay in school.

The young student, who says he is a member of the Communist party, became the center of a congressional storm when it was learned that he recently received a $1,600 fellowship from the atomic energy commission to start July 1.

Freistadt said he would seek legal aid if the fellowship is withdrawn. He said the AEC agreement was in the form of a contract and he was not questioned on his political views when the contract was signed.

Former Gangster Fights For Life

FAIRFIELD, Ill., May 25.—(UP)—Earl Shelton, an oldtime gangster, fought for life today after being shot from ambush in the same way gunmen killed two other brothers of the notorious southern Illinois family that once fought a rival mob with tanks, planes and "infantry."

An unknown assassin fired three shots at Shelton through the back window of the Farmer's Club, a resort Shelton operated on Fairfield's town square. Two shots missed. The third ripped in to Shelton's back.

The gunman escaped, scrambling down unseen from the garage roof from which he fired the shots into the window. Police said they had no clues to his identity.

Shelton was rushed to Deaconess Hospital in Evansville, Ind., after Dr. Donald B. Frankel gave him emergency treatment at the club.

Hospital attendants said he was in "satisfactory" condition. They refused to say whether he was conscious or had made any statements. Frankel said, however, that he expected Shelton to recover.

"If the angle of the bullet had varied to the slightest degree, it would have killed him instantly," Frankel said.

City policeman Clarence Colclasure said early investigations failed to turn up any motive for the shooting. He said he did not know whether it was connected with the murder of Shelton's brothers, Carl and Bernard.

The three brothers fought an almost incredible gang war which rocked southern Illinois for years. Their fights with the Birger gang cost 40 lives during the roaring twenties.

Carl died in a 15-shot machine gun blast from a black sedan which ambushed him on a farm road in 1947. Bernard was slain late last July by a hidden sniper at Peoria, Ill. Neither murder has been solved.

Colclasure said Earl operated the club, which was popular with farmers who wanted to play cards. He said the club also reputedly operated a dice game and roulette wheel.

The window through which the gunman fired is visible only from the rear of the building.

SCHOOL BUSES COMPLETE TASKS THIS WEEK

There is a great responsibility felt when the big fifty passenger buses owned and operated by the Greencastle Consolidated Schools, leave each morning to transport the four hundred pupils from every corner of the township, to school. More than two hundred miles are covered by these buses in making their daily routes.

School buses are also used to transport approximately one hundred of our boys and girls to a school lunch served daily at the Miller cafeteria. Besides the daily routes, hundreds of miles are traveled each year for class projects, making excursions, delivering school mail and supplies.

All these added advantages are offered our boys and girls, and still a transportation cost of several dollars below the state average is maintained.

All buses are checked daily, serviced, and rechecked every thousand miles. As the end of this school term draws near, it is hoped to mark another year to their safety record.

Home Ec. Group Visited Muncie

Sixty-nine Home Economics women enjoyed a tour May 24th to Richmond and Muncie. Mrs. Burford Blaydes is chairman of the tour committee.

Hill Bros. Floral Products Company was visited in Richmond, where every person received a gardenia corsage. The rose gardens were viewed and the orchid gardens were of special interest as 30 years are required to perfect an orchid from seed to maturity.

Luncheon was served at Ball Bros. Company cafeteria. The glass factory was inspected and the home canning center, where hundreds of Muncie housewives take advantage of the opportunity to have their food supplies processed scientifically and quickly, using glass jars exclusively for canning. Apple sauce and green beans were processed for the benefit of the tour members, and questions were answered concerning home canning.

The frozen food experimental kitchen was visited also. Here a demonstration was given on the latest development in caring for foods for freezing purposes. Here again the women were given the opportunity to ask questions and received literature on home canning, preserving and freezing as well as a glass freezing jar complete with self sealing lid.

The Ball State Teachers college was then visited, which included the Fine Arts building in which the contents of one room's treasures were appraised around $1,000,000. Supper was eaten in the college cafeteria after which the buses left for the return trip.

The general public has been invited to attend the elaborate state presentation, "Previews of Progress" to be given at the Gobin Memorial church this evening at 8 o'clock. The show will follow the dinner of the Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs.

Presented without charge by General Motors Corporation, Previews of Progress was witnessed by more than a million and a half people during the past year.

The victim's brother-in-law, M. S. Hacker, struggled to the shore. The mishap occurred near Newberry.

Boost Military Pay

ON, May 25.—Sponsor of the bill said today it is dead for this session and "probably years to come."

"If they won't vote for a carefully worked out bill," he said, "I don't see much sense in trying to work out another."

Kilday's House Armed Services Subcommittee had spent three months on the bill. It was based on recommendations of the House Commission which, in turn, had worked more than a year drafting the proposed new pay scales.

The House voted 227 to 163 against the bill that carried the biggest pay hikes for generals, cast for the privates and nothing at all for the lowly recruit.

President Truman had urged passage of the measure as "a most important part" of the defense program.

Young veterans of World War II were credited generally with sparking the drive that killed the bill. They centered their fire on its fat increases for high ranking officers.

"Too long has the brass had the breaks," said Rep. Pat Sutton, D., Tenn., decorated naval veteran who rose in five years of World War II service from apprentice seaman to the rank of lieutenant junior grade.

4-H CLUB NEWS

On Wednesday, the baking class of the Fillmore High Climbers met at the school building with Maracelline Molter, adult leader in charge. Baking one, two and five divisions did not bake at this meeting but plan to bake at the next meeting. Groups three and four baked cookies and coffee cakes. The meeting then adjourned for recreation with recreational leader Melba Zaring in charge of a soft ball game. After recreation, we then came into the school house to eat the cookies and cakes. The next meeting will be held May 25 at the Fillmore school house 9 to 12 o'clock, DST.

The Food Preparation girls of Fillmore, the High Climbers met at the school building on May 17 at 9 to 12 o'clock. The meeting was called to order by the president June DeWeese. The pledge to the flag was led by Rachel Cooper. The 4-H pledge was led by Coleen Phillips.

The group sang four songs. The roll call was answered by our favorite magazine. Secretary and treasurer, Patty Masten collected dues. For recreation, we were led by Wilma Zaring. Baseball was played. Lemonade, iced tea and sandwiches were made. It was planned that the group make fruit salad at the next meeting, May 24.

YOUNGER PEOPLE HAVE OWN CHURCH SERVICE

MILTON, Mass. (UP)—Church-going is fun for the children of the First Parish (Congregational) Church of Milton, who have their own miniature house of worship alongside the one used by grown-ups.

The congregation, ranging in age from five to 15, has a special service in the tiny, white, steeped church each Sunday.

A grown-up conducts services, but the youngsters fill the other offices, take up collections and furnish music with a choir and tiny electric organ.

MIGHT HAVE BEEN HOLDUP IF HE'D HAD WEAPON

BOSTON (UP)—Frank Thompson, liquor store clerk, says the oddest customer he ever handled was the fellow who entered his Back Bay store and announced: "This is a stickup!"

Not seeing any weapon,

Thompson asked: "With what?"

Startled, the would-be holdup man bought—and paid for—a pint of whiskey before fleeing.

WASHINGTON, May 25 — (UP)—The Left Wing, which claims major credit for last November's Democratic election triumph, began uproarious protest today against abandonment of much of President Truman's "welfare state" program at this session of Congress.

Americans for Democratic action, an organization of new dealers, led off with this statement:

"It will come as a great shock to the nation that the administration leaders have abandoned all thought of enacting civil rights and major social legislation in this session."

The new congressional timetable also is expected to arouse CIO, AFL and independent labor organizations. Many of their pet projects will misfire this year or, at most, be enacted in compromise form far from what they had expected.

Poppy Article By Mrs. Brown

The following article was prepared and presented by Mrs. Cecil Brown, at the Greencastle Council of Clubs meeting, held in Gobin Memorial Church.

THE MEMORIAL POPPY

The idea of the poppy as a memorial flower for the World War dead sprang up as naturally as the little wild flower itself grows in the fields of France and Flanders. The flower was the one touch of beauty which survived amid the hideous destruction of war.

Returning soldiers brought the vision of the poppy fields back with them, engraved indelibly in their hearts with the memories of the comrades they had left on the battle-front. Spontaneously the poppy took on a sacred significance. It became the flower of remembrance for the men who had poured out their life's blood around the roots of the little plant.

The first instance of wearing poppies in honor of the war dead occurred in New York City, November 9, 1918, when Miss Moira Michael of Athens, Georgia, who was serving on the staff of the Y.M.C.A. Overseas Headquarters, distributed poppies to men attending the twenty-fifth conference of the Y.M.C.A.

The poppy was first sold publicly on the streets of Milwaukee in connection with the reception of the Thirty-second Division, in June, 1919, and was sold by American Legion Posts of Milwaukee just before Memorial Day, 1920, for the purpose of securing funds for disabled veterans.

At the inspiration of Miss Michael, the poppy was adopted as the official memorial flower by the Georgia Department of The American Legion in August, 1920. Georgia delegates were instructed to present a resolution to the Legion's National Convention in Cleveland that fall to make the flower the official memorial flower of the national organization.

In recognition of her services, Miss Michael was later decorated with the Distinguished Service Medal of the American Legion Auxiliary.

Mrs. Mary Haney, of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, is credited with originating the idea of selling the "Flanders Poppies" as a means of raising funds for World War Veterans rehabilitation work. The American Legion Auxiliary, at its convention in Portland, Oregon, in 1932, adopted a resolution authorizing the issuance of a certificate of merit to Mrs. Haney for originating the sale of poppies for welfare work.

The Poppy was made the Memorial Flower of The American Legion at its National Convention in Cleveland, Ohio, September 27-29, 1920.

When the American Legion Auxiliary was organized in Kansas City, in 1921, one of its first official acts was to make the poppy its official Memorial flower.

The Poppy also became the memorial flower of the British Legion. Other American Veterans' organizations followed The American Legion and Auxiliary in adopting it as their official flower of remembrance. Soon many millions of the little red flowers were being worn each year in all parts of the English-speaking world, to honor the World War dead and to aid the war's living victims.

The nation-wide sale of memorial poppies was begun by The Legion and Auxiliary in 1921. At first silk poppies made in France by French widows and orphans were used. In 1922 the first poppies made by American veterans were produced in the hospitals of Minnesota, and this work has steadily expanded until poppies are being made in more than eighty hospitals and disabled veterans' work-rooms in forty different states.

The crepe paper poppy was elected as the official poppy of the American Legion and Auxiliary because it provided the maximum of work for the disabled men, with the minimum expenditure for materials. The fabric poppy was considered, but it was not selected because making this poppy would not provide sufficient employment for the disabled veterans.

By 1924 it was seen that the poppy program let itself more naturally to the work of women than of men, and the American Legion gave the Auxiliary complete charge of the national program. This was a heavy responsibility. The poppy-making has a beneficial effect in addition to the money it enables the veterans to earn. The hours for sick men in the hospital are long and monotonous. In idleness their minds are prone to dwell on the hardships of their families or on their own disabilities. But men whose fingers are busy with bright red poppy petals do not give themselves up to depressing worry. The hours are made shorter for them and they are given a new interest in life. Veterans with any form of communicable disease are not permitted to make poppies. In some cases the work is given to the wives of these men, special workshops being established for them outside the hospitals. The money they earn helps them keep their families together until their husbands can recover health and again become wage earners.

The poppy work, both in the hospitals and work-rooms, is reserved for men receiving little or no government compensation. Men with dependent families are given preference. The number of poppies each man is permitted to make per day is restricted to prevent the disabled workers from overtaxing their strength and to spread employment among as many men as possible.

The material for the poppies is supplied to the disabled workers by the Auxiliary.

The Auxiliary pays the wages of the men weekly throughout the manufacturing period. The distribution of the flowers and the promotion of the sale is handled by the Auxiliary, all in advance of any revenue from the sale of poppies. The manufacture of the poppies is in charge of the Department Organizations of the Auxiliary; each finished poppy carries its banner, stating its sale is under the auspices of the American Legion Auxiliary, and that a wounded or disabled veteran of our wars made it.

Each Unit of the Department is set a quota by their Department to sell. The quota of Cassell C. Tucker Unit No. 58 is 3,000 and the cost to the Unit is three cents each. So you can readily see that the Units must receive from the public at least ten cents for the poppies if they realize much with which to do relief and rehabilitation work. The money which is dropped into the coin boxes in exchange for the poppies goes entirely to the welfare activities of the American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary, supporting the work which these two great service organizations do for the disabled veterans, the families of the disabled and the families left in need by the death of veterans. The bulk of the funds derived from the Poppy Day sales remain in the community where they are raised.

The Poppy Sale now takes place almost everywhere on the Saturday before Memorial Day. The 1929 National Convention at Louisville, Ky. urged that this date be adhered to "wherever possible."

Thus the Poppies which we will wear in America on Poppy Day are not, of course, natural flowers from the battlefields. Their petals are only paper and their stems wire, yet into them has been breathed the spirit of patriotic service, the spirit of those days when life itself was not too much to give for America. They have grown in hospitals and workrooms where war's suffering still is going on. They have bloomed under the hands of men disabled in war for whom the creation of a poppy is an achievement.

The crepe-paper poppy you will wear over your heart this May day of remembrance, may be ill-fashioned and unskillfully made. Treasure it the more, because it represents the first faltering steps on the road back to some man who was willing to give his life, so that you and I could keep ours. In many cases he has a family, for which he was responsible before he offered his greatest gift to this country. He worries about his family and is trying to rehabilitate himself so that he may leave the white cot in the white hospital and again take his place at the head of the table and say "Grace" with thanksgiving.

When you buy your Poppy Saturday, May 28th, think of the disabled veteran in a hospital or convalescent workshop who has fashioned the little blood-red flower. Think of the fatherless family whose struggles during the coming year will be lightened by the coin you drop into the Poppy worker's box. Think of the brave American boys who lie beneath the waving poppies in France. Think of these things and you will understand the true significance of the Poppy.

The little scarlet poppy blooms this spring over the graves of those who fell in World War I. It now has new off-shoots on the graves of the recently fallen in World War II. Their off-shoots grow, not only in France, but in Holland, Italy, Alaska, and in almost every country in the world, because World War II was a global war. Poppies bloom in the universal field of remembrance. Can we afford to forget their significance?

As peace is established on earth the Unknown Soldier of World War I will have made room for the spirit of his brother: nameless hero of World War II. Let us hope that through diligence, service and remembrance, they shall never again be disturbed. There can be no room for three.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

IN THE late Russell Maloney's delectable pot-pourri, It's Still Maloney, he analyzed the quirk that permits laymen who would never dream of showing vulgar curiosity over the earnings of a banker or butcher to ask a writer blandly, "How much did you get for that last article?" or "How much will you make out of your new book?"

Maloney said that Alva Johnston worked out an answer that, for some reason is an infallible stopper: "I get twenty-six dollars a column, but I have to pay my own expenses."

One of the best of Maloney's back-stage reminiscences of New Yorker days concerns the time a regular poetry contributor won the Pulitzer prize. An editor wrote him a warm letter of congratulation, and tacked on a P.S. that read, "We are returning herewith your last batch of poems, because none of them seems quite right for our present needs."

Chinese Reds Hold Shanghai

SHANGHAI, May 25 (UP)—Communist troops occupied all of Central Shanghai without resistance today but ran into fighting along the city's billion-dollar Bund when they tried to pursue retreating Nationalists northward.

Nationalist commanders surrendered fabulously wealthy Shanghai, fourth largest city of the world, with only scattered shooting from Nationalist stragglers who failed to join the withdrawal northward.

The main body of the Nationalists slipped north out of Shanghai last night, heading for the Woosung forts at the mouth of the Whangpoo. A fleet of ships has been gathered there for days, apparently for a Nationalist escape by sea.

The Nationalists left a rear guard at three main bridges across Soochow creek, which runs an east-west course marking off northern Shanghai from the central section of the city.

The rear guard blocked Communist pursuit of the main Nationalist force and a flurry of street fighting broke out at noon when the Communists brought up machine guns and tried to force the bridges.

Other groups of Nationalist troops took up positions in Broadway Mansions, the city's largest apartment hotel on the north bank of Soochow creek. From these they fired on Communists approaching Garden Bridge, main span across Soochow creek on the billion-dollar bund.

Up to noon an estimated 5,000 Communist troops had entered Shanghai from the west. Most of them lounged in the downtown shopping center, gazing into shuttered shop windows while waiting orders.

A small group of foreign correspondents covering Shanghai's fall reached the cable office in the Communist-controlled part of the city before the firing started at noon.

Communist troops lining Nan-king road, the main shopping center, looked and acted not like conquerors but simply tired youths waiting for their next battle orders.

There was no pride or elation in their faces at having conquered the greatest city in the Orient with a population of 6,000,000.

For one "trick" sequence in Warner Bros' much-discussed drama, "The Decision of Christopher Blake," Alexis Smith enacts the role of femme fatale. She wears a raven-black wig, a black sequin gown and puffs on a cigarette holder, nearly two feet in length. The entire bit is done in startling black-and-white color motif today at the Voncastle.
